

Law360's Titans of the Plaintiffs Bar FAQs

How many submissions may one firm submit?

- A firm may enter a maximum of two attorneys.

Can I submit someone who won this award last year?

- No. Attorneys who won this award in 2018 are not eligible for 2019 recognition.

What is the word limit?

- There are four sections: one that allows you to detail up to five cases filed during the prior calendar year (up to 250 words for each case description); one that allows you to detail up to five wins during the prior calendar year (up to 250 words for each win description); one that allows you to describe what distinguishes the nominee from his or her peers (up to 500 words); and one section titled "Anything else we should know?" (up to 500 words).

What are you looking for in the submission?

- Include cases in the submission in which there was a major win in the year time frame (Jan. 1, 2018 - Dec. 31, 2018), not every ongoing matter on which the attorney is working.
- Be specific about what happened in the case during that year that is significant, and explain why it was significant. For example, did the attorney win a motion for class certification? Was there a favorable settlement or jury verdict?

What if I want to include more than five cases?

- Only include cases in which something significant and newsworthy happened in the relevant time frame. The submission does not need to include every ongoing matter on which the attorney is working.
- If there are additional cases and issues on which the attorney is working beyond those five that you must include, list them in the "Anything else we should know?" field. There is a 500-word limit there.

Can I select multiple practice areas?

- Yes. Select "Other" — the last option in the drop down menu — and then list all of the practice areas in that box.
