Availability of Live Audio Access to April 2020 Court Session

Following declarations of public health emergencies in the National Capital Region, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit limited public access to the courthouse and directed that all remaining arguments on the April 2020 calendar be conducted telephonically. Given these extraordinary circumstances, the court has authorized live audio access to all arguments during the April 2020 session.

By 9 a.m. (EDT) the morning of each day of argument, the Clerk's Office will post on its website dial-in numbers that members of the media and the public can use to access the live audio of each panel scheduled for argument that day. Members of the media and the public can begin connecting to an individual conference line starting at 9:15 a.m. each day of argument, and attendees should plan to connect to the conference line no later than 9:45 a.m.

These conference lines will be available in "listen only" mode, with a separate line used to access each panel. Recordings of all arguments will be posted on the court's website after the conclusion of arguments each day.

Because of limited on-site staff availability, the Clerk's Office will neither be able to provide technical assistance to anyone trying to access the conference lines nor be able to provide access information either ahead of time or beyond what is posted on the court's website.
